MICHAEL JACKSON PLANS TO FAKE HIS OWN DEATH

ARTIST'S conception of Michael Jackson as he might look after starting his new life. Psychic Andy Reiss says The Gloved One may disguise himself with the bald-on-top look.

By TEODY GERALD / Weekly World News

Ding-a-ling singing sensation Michael Jackson is so stressed out over the scandals that have rocked his life in the past five years that he plans to fake his own death and disappear into the night — just like his idol, Elvis Presley!

That's the fascinating revelation of super psychic and metaphysician Dr. Andy Reiss, who says Wacko Jacko has reached the point where he knows he has to get out before he flips out.

"I've had direct access to Michael's thoughts for more than a year now, and I can tell you that he's just about at the end of his rope," Dr. Reiss told reporters.

"With the press and his millions of fans following his every move, and with all the shame and humiliation he's faced in connection with his personal life, Michael feels now the way Elvis must have felt when he 'died' and slipped into hiding back in 1977. He feels like he's in a pressure cooker and the lid is about to blow sky-high. He wants out — and he wants out now!" The master psychologist says The Gloved One has already spent hours locked with friends and family, planning the cover story for his escape from the public eye in late 1999 or early 2000.

PSYCHIC Andy Reiss

"The plan is for Michael to allegedly die of a heart attack while riding the Ferris wheel at his Neverland Valley ranch in Los Olivos," Dr. Reiss said.

"Michael's family will issue the word that his remains have been cremated and scattered about the ranch he loved so much.

"Michael will then change his appearance and walk away into a simpler, less-hectic life — where maybe he can at last find peace."

And incredibly, the 39-year-old superstar discussed his escape plans with Elvis himself during a top-secret meeting at a Charleston, S.C., motel just one month, me famed seer to the stars revealed.

"Elvis managed to fool the world for nearly a decade, but the public finally caught on to his ploy," Dr. Reiss said. "Michael hopes that by learning from Elvis' mistakes, he can make a clean getaway and never be seen again."

HERE'S WHY BLACKBOARD SCREECHING DRIVES YOU NUTTY

Why do you cringe when you hear the high-pitched screeching sound of chalk being dragged across a blackboard? Experts say it's because our prehistoric ape-like ancestors used a similar-sounding cry as warn of danger.

Researchers have discovered that "blackboard screech" bears a close resemblance to the warning cries emitted by certain species of monkeys.

They theorize that the mind sends a chill up our spines as a reflex, left over from an earlier phase in human evolution.

MAN'S WEE-WEE CUT OFF WHILE MAKING LOVE TO A VACUUM CLEANER!

By JACK ALEXANDER and RICK TRACY / Weekly World News

LONG BRANCH, N.J. — A 51-year-old weirdo was looking for love in all the wrong places when he stuck his penis into a vacuum cleaner — and got a piece of his organ whacked off.

"He was trying to get some kind of sexual pleasure from the vacuum's powerful suction," said Police Lt. Gil Horror. "But he didn't realize there was a small razor-sharp rotary blade near where you attach the hose that pushes the dust into the collection bag."

Cops said the lovestruck bachelor — who wasn't identified — was bound up, embarrassed and in pain when he called them with a cock-and-bull story about a mysterious intruder who had stabbed him in the groin while he slept.

Paramedics stopped the bleeding and rushed him to nearby Monmouth Medical Center, where surgeons patched up his penis but were unable to reattach the severed piece.

He later admitted to police that there was no mysterious intruder.

He had lost a quarter-inch of his manhood by trying to have a sexual relationship with an old upright vacuum cleaner. "And the vacuum cleaner quickly severed the relationship," said one cop.

Emergency room nurses say cases of accidental sexual abuse aren't as rare as you might think.

"Most of the guys say they got it caught in their zipper, but we know better," said an emergency room doctor.

Burns scarred boy so badly all his friends rejected him — except one!

By JOE BERGER / Weekly World News

SHEFFIELD, England — When horrified 9-year-old Matthew Callis was burned almost beyond recognition in a roaring car fire, thirteen other friends and classmates turned their backs on the pitiful kid because they couldn't stand to look at the stomach-turning scars that covered his face and body.

But true-blue buddy Jamie Shaw, 10, stayed by hapless Matthew's side for five heartbreaking months, offering words of encouragement, helping to feed and dress him — and even changing the bandages protecting his hideously charred flesh.

"People said Matthew was too ugly to look at, but he's my friend ... and friends aren't ever ugly, even when they're hurt," said faithful Jamie. "He was burned on the outside, but he was still Matthew underneath."

The touching tale began early this year when another motorist plowed into the car driven by Matthew's bus-driver dad Michael on a busy freeway near their home, causing the Callis's car to burst into flames.

Matthew's parents suffered only minor injuries in the mishap, but their fun-loving son sustained third-degree burns over 30 percent of his body and has since undergone 14 operations to repair his fire-ravaged face, hands and chest.

"Matthew was a very popular outgoing boy with a lot of friends and we expected them to stick by him," said his devoted dad. "But apparently, it was just too painful for them to be with him and see the horrible damage the fire had done to him.

"Not Jamie, though. Jamie was there at the hospital on that very first day when Matthew was in so much pain, and he's been at Matthew's side every day since then — holding his scarred little hands, staying up with him all night long when he was so plagued by nightmares he was too afraid to sleep, cheering him up when he could barely stand to go on and helping us change those awful, awful bandages.

"It was like having our very own 10-year-old Mother Teresa there to help us out around the clock. I truly don't know if Matthew would be alive today without Jamie."

And now that tragic Matthew has recovered enough to head back to school, he's not sure how squeamish teachers and classmates will react to his return. But he says he no longer worries about that.

"I don't need a lot of friends" said the grateful fourth-grader. "When you have one friend like Jamie, one is enough."

ARLINGTON, Va. — A restaurant cashier was sentenced to two years in prison for trying to cash in a customer's $6.8 million lottery ticket.

HIGH-ROLLIN' RASPUTIN!

Crazy Russian politician wants to turn Moscow into Las Vegas!

By JACK ALEXANDER / Weekly World News

WACKY Russkie Vladimir Zhirinovsky plans to turn Moscow into a city of sin and fun.

Russkie rabble-rouser Vladimir Zhirinovsky says he could beef up the sagging Russian economy in a heartbeat by turning Moscow into a king-size Las Vegas for sin — and building a giant Disney World in the Republic of Georgia.

"We could make Vegas and Orlando look like kids towns," said Ivan Andreyev, a spokesman for Zhirinovsky's Liberal Democratic Party.

Often called a clever clown with political clout, Zhirinovsky would deal with the Devil if it was the only way to restore the former Soviet Union as one of the world's super-powers.

"But it takes money to get power — lots and lots of money," Andreyev said. "Vegas was just a sand dune before legalized gambling.

"And Orlando was only a tiny town in the middle of Florida until Disney arrived.

"Today both cities rake in billions every year from people around the world who go there to have fun."

Zhirinovsky would turn Moscow into a glittering neon city of gambling casinos, porno shops and sex parlors that would rival the ones in Amsterdam's famed red-light district. "Everything from slot machines to high-priced sluts," Andreyev said.

Zhirinovsky startled political observers in 1991 when he finished third in Russia's presidential election with 8 percent of the vote. His foot-in-the-mouth ways and hair-trigger tongue have caused more embarrassment in recent years.

Zhirinovsky created a stir in 1995 when he offered a slug of vodka to a top Indian minister who was forbidden by religious law to drink in public. And he hurled a glass of orange juice at a Russian regional governor who accused him of having syphilis. He led an unsuccessful movement in 1994 to take Alaska back from the U.S. and turn it into a concentration camp for Russia's crooks, hustlers and other misfits.

He and other Russian reactionaries demanded the return of Alaska on grounds it was discovered by Russia in 1741 and illegally sold to the Americans by the Russian imperial family in 1867.

But politicians here say Zhirinovsky's latest idea might have merit in today's capitalistic Russia because it could be a shot in the arm for the country's sick economy.

MEN REALLY DON'T LIKE WOMEN VERY MUCH says new study

By JUNE SAWYER / Weekly World News

Men clearly don't like women very much — even their own mates, according to a shocking new study.

"In fact, most husbands — 55 percent of those surveyed — don't even consider their wives to be their friends," said Dr. Gerald Phillips.

Most husbands don't even think of their wives as friends

"And less than 30 percent of the husbands answered flatly, 'Yes, my wife is my friend,'" said Dr. Phillips, who analyzed the essay-type questionnaires from 2,000 men and 3,318 women in an eye-opening 10-year study.

"It's doubtful that men will ever actually like women because they are caught in different value systems.

"When men speak of friends they talk of allies and team members.

"They don't like women because they don't regard them as potential allies — instead they see them as threats."

The study also found that men resented women because they believed they couldn't count on them when the chips were down. The men felt that sooner or later every woman was likely to betray them.

For example, wives find out about their husbands' weaknesses and shortcomings over the years. "Men secretly resent that. They're afraid their wives will someday expose them," explained Dr. Phillips, co-author of Loving and Living Improve Your Friendships and Marriage.

"The men have an avoidance that their women are betraying them, but they feel it's likely to happen sooner or later because women are mentally weak," Dr. Phillips said.

"A big reason men said they don't like women is that they see them as being both physically and mentally weak and therefore not good allies."

And men also can't figure out the games women play — or their rules.

"This is not to say men don't want to have anything to do with women — quite the contrary," Dr. Phillips said.

"Men like women in the way they love french fries and ice cream. At least two-thirds of the men indicated they still want their women to be blonde, blue-eyed Miss America types who are deaf and dumb."

WATCH WHAT YOU SAY!

Your pet is listening!

By KELLY TURNER / Weekly World News

Using negative words or phrases — even in a gentle tone — can give your dog or cat psychological problems, according to top animal experts.

That's because animals pick up on what they hear you say and learn to associate words with positive or negative emotions.

By telling your dog he's ugly or so bad he's going to the pound, you run the risk of turning the pet into a depressed pooch who'll sleep in a corner all day. And you'll see crotchety behavior from your cat, such as clawing the furniture, if you keep bad-mouthing the kitty.

"I once had a dog who used to leave the room every time he heard 'IRS,'" said animal expert Dr. Mary Lee Nitschke.

"I was going through a difficult audit at the time and he picked up on the fact that I was unhappy.

"He learned that whenever a discussion revolved around the IRS, things weren't going to get any better. Animals are smarter than people give them credit for being."

Noted animal trainer Maureen Hall agrees.

"Many people don't realize that the very words you use can have an impact on animals," says Hall, who's worked on several feature films.

"I feel so strongly about this that in my animal training classes, I instruct people to leave negative words outside.

"Animals pick up on the fact that what you're saying is uncomplimentary.

"Even if you speak the words in a loving tone, you give off negative vibes that your pet senses."

Hall cited the case of the dog owners who'd named their pooch Pug Ugly and couldn't understand why the dog always walked around with his head lowered.

"I could tell he had low self-esteem and thought of himself as stupid and ugly," said Hall.

"I told the owners to change his name to Pugsley."

They did and within hours, the pooch was a happy tail-wagger.

You can't change the past. But you can find out what to avoid in the future.

H-BOMB INSURANCE SELLING LIKE HOTCAKES!

MUNICH — A German company has come under fire for selling "H-bomb insurance" policies in Pakistan.

Pakistanis have been worried about a possible nuclear attack in the wake of recent hydrogen bomb tests conducted by neighboring India, a rival nation.

And the International Redershaden Insurance Corporation has tried to cash in on the fears by offering the policies, which pay off in the event that a person loses property or incurs medical expenses as the result of a nuclear holocaust.

A government critic blasted the firm's move as an example of "shameless opportunism and corporate greed." But the policies have been selling like hotcakes — about 11,000 have been purchased so far.

Guess who whizzed through medical school?

By JUNE SAWYER / Weekly World News

Dr. Moron, M.D.

He has the mind of a child but he practices medicine on real people!

A young man with an I.Q. slightly higher than that of a moron sailed through medical school and is now a practicing physician, according to shocked psychologists!

The doctor's dismal 68 I.Q. was discovered after his hospital superiors suggested he seek psychological treatment to improve his performance.

But the unidentified doc's superiors were not informed of the physician's incredibly low intelligence.

"He managed to get through medical school and managed to pass the medical board exams because a lot of medical school is sheer memory," said Jules C. Abrams, a psychologist.

According to Abrams, the doctor suffers from a severe learning disability.

Even though he is able to memorize facts very well, he has trouble putting them together, said the psychologist. "He could go all through medical school, but he might not be able to tell that a child's nosebleed is tied up with the fact that she is having severe pains in her chest," the psychologist said.

The young doctor's learning disability was first discovered by school psychologists when he was a boy, but the child and his family hid the problem.

The problem didn't resurface until the man, now in his late 30s, had graduated from medical school and began practicing as a medical resident in a hospital.

Abrams, who did not identify the hospital or the city where the physician is working, said the man's superiors thought he was having trouble performing as a doctor because of depression.

They suggested he get psychological treatment, which he is now undergoing. The doctor's superiors in the hospital residency program were not informed of the test results revealing the man's learning disability and low level of intelligence.

NEW HERBAL FOR

Incredible HAPPY HERB

. . . works better than Prozac for depression!

By KEVIN CREID / Weekly World News

BOSTON — This year, millions of impotent men will pay $10 a pill for the new drug Viagra. But there are natural, herbal remedies for impotence and other devastating conditions that are more effective than expensive drugs — and cost just pennies a day!

"The medical profession doesn't want the public to know about these herbs," says Dr. Klaus Aschmund, a retired internist from Bonn, Germany, now living in Boston.

"But any honest, competent student of human health can tell you that paying top dollar for Viagra and other expensive prescription medicines is unnecessary.

"Nature has provided herbs and other substances that can clear up most medical problems, and they can do it at a fraction of the cost of the super drugs with no side-effects.

"These days, everyone is raving about Viagra. The pharmaceutical industry is touting it as the new 'miracle drug' that will put the magic back into the sex lives of impotent men.

"But what they're not telling you is that two purely natural herbs — both available through any reputable herbal supplier — can restore male sexual function quickly and can do it without expensive Viagra.

"The two herbs are pygeum bark and saw palmetto extract.

"The pygeum is a tree native to Africa. Saw palmetto trees are native to the West Indies but grow abundantly along America's east coast.

"The extracts of both trees have been used to treat impotence and other prostrate-related problems for centuries. Recently, scientists have discovered that combining the two herbs increases their effectiveness geometrically."

Many health food stores and mail-order suppliers sell capsules containing a combination of saw palmetto and pygeum. But Dr. Aschmund recommends taking the two herbs in separate capsules if you can find them.

They work miracles for most men afflicted by prostate-related impotence — a cause of the vast majority of male sexual dysfunction.

The particular potency and dosages vary from store to store and from company to company but Dr. Aschmund says you can't go wrong if you simply follow the directions on the bottle.

Although prices also vary, generally speaking the cost of this miraculous herbal treatment

ANGEL IN A HELLSTORM!

HAPPY MOM Daria Stanley says she and her baby Jason were saved from a deadly tornado — by a guardian angel! The artist's conception at far right shows the amazing rescue

Alabama mom didn't believe in God — until 'lady in white' saved her baby from a 250 m.p.h. tornado!

By ANN VICTORIA | Weekly World News

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — A grateful mom and her 14-month-old baby are alive today — thanks to a guardian angel who saved them from a tornado that destroyed every house in the area except theirs!

Daria Stanley, 28, says she didn't believe in God until April 9, when a monster packing 250-m.p.h. winds slashed through her modest, middle-class neighborhood near here.

"I had just put little Jason down for a nap on my bed," says the single mother. "He has his own crib but he hates napping in it. So in the afternoon I let him sleep in the big bed.

"I was ironing my waitress uniform. There was no one in the room except Jason and I. All at once I heard a woman's voice speaking to me, clear as day. She said, 'Get your baby and get in the closet.'

"I looked around the room, but I was the only person there. I figured I was hearing things, so I kept ironing.

"Then the voice said, 'Get your baby and get in the closet, now!' This time I knew I wasn't imagining it. I didn't know what was going on, but I knew I had to obey the voice.

"I grabbed Jason and ran to the closet. I didn't hesitate. Before I had even reached the bed, I heard something that sounded like a locomotive thundering down a railroad track.

"The closer I got to the bed, the louder it got until, by the time I got to Jason, the noise was deafening.

"The bed was right beside the window and, as I leaned down for Jason, I looked out and noticed the sky was solid black.

"I had no sooner picked him up when the first violent wind struck the house, breaking the window and throwing glass shards all over the bed. Another blast ripped off the roof and knocked down the walls.

"I ducked down on the floor and covered Jason with my body. I was terrified that the wind would suck us out of the house.

"Then I heard the voice say, 'Stay down hard on the edge of the bed.'

That's when Daria first saw the face she'll never forget.

"She suddenly appeared at the foot of the bed. She was dressed all in white and had a white veil over her head. She looked like a nurse.

"She told me, 'Don't be afraid. I'm here to protect you. Nothing will happen to you.'

"I felt a sense of peace and knew that no harm would befall me."

Daria obeyed and sat there for seven terrifying minutes as the deadly winds tore through the neighborhood.

"Then it was over. The roar of the wind died down and I looked around. Not a single home was standing.

"I have no doubt God sent that lady in white to save us. I'm so grateful to be alive."

WORLD'S #1 SMOKER DIES

By KEVIN CREID / Weekly World News

HOUSTON — Angela Santa, known for years as the world's most prolific chain-smoker, has died of a concussion after falling down an open manhole — just two months after she quit smoking!

The mild-mannered landscaper first came to the world's attention four years ago when Weekly World News reporter Joe Berger interviewed the amazing blue-eyed nicotine lover for our Feb. 22, 1994, issue.

Texas gal kicks 14-pack-a-day habit for her health — & is killed in fall down manhole!

Berger's story revealed that Angie smoked 14 packs — or an astonishing 280 cigarettes — every single day.

But to the bewilderment of her doctors, the remarkable lady was as healthy as a horse. She demonstrated none of the medical problems — like high blood pressure, lung congestion or raw throat — experienced by most heavy smokers.

After Berger's story, Miss Santa appeared on several national TV talk shows and when asked, humorously, "I'll quit smoking when pigs learn to stop lying."

But all that changed in April of this year when she met the man of her dreams — a nonsmoker — and fell in love. She proposed and asked her if she would remember giving up the dirty habit so that they would both be tobacco free before their wedding, which was set for June 19. And, incredibly, she really did cigarettes forever.

"She did it for him," said Angela's sister. "He was the only man in the world who could ever have gotten her to make a sacrifice like that."

"The love must be very strong."

Ironically, after going two months without a cigarette, Angela was carrying some of her landscaping gear from her van to a private yard when she tripped and didn't see an open manhole in the street. She fell in, struck her head on the rim and died before paramedics arrived.

Miss Santa is survived by her mother and two sisters.

This was right after the riots totally changed Los Angeles in an instant and Carrey shocked the audience by attacking the black band. "I felt a swing at him and said I was the Reginald Denny of the show and a week later Arsenio introduced the guest by saying that I was the weirdest guy he had ever had on the show," Carrey said of the negative response to his previous appearance. "Arsenio's trying for a laugh line. I walked out and stood frozen in the spotlight while they applauded. I had a bit of a nervous bottle in my pocket and couldn't look, so I was peeking at the bottle."

HOW TO HAVE HOT PHONE SEX!

By MIKE FOSTER
World Weekly News

Learn how you can burn up the wires with these seven sexy tips

Author Dr. Dyanne Kerky

You can enjoy a terrific love life even when your partner is thousands of miles away — by romancing your sweetheart over the phone!

"By following a few simple tips you can make phone sex just as rewarding as love in the bedroom," — or wherever," declared psychologist Dr. Dyanne Kerky, author of the upcoming book, Let Your Fingers Do the Walking: Better Phone Sex Today.

In researching the book, Dr. Kerky interviewed more than 200 couples who were forced to live apart for long periods. "Many of these were military couples, with one partner stationed overseas for months at a time," said the Los Angeles expert. "They had to improvise to keep the romance alive — and learning to make love over the phone was a stroke of genius, heh!"

Here, from the experts, are seven tips for heating up your phone sex:

LET GO OF YOUR INHIBITIONS — Quash those guilty feelings about "talking dirty." Remember, you're no obscene phone caller whispering lurid lines into the ear of a shocked unwilling victim. This is just a fun, exciting way to show your affection for your partner.

DOLL YOURSELF UP — Sure, you don't have to look [illegible] your wedding day, but you should [illegible] a bath and shave your legs. Splash on some fragrance or after shave and you'll really feel sexy. That will help get you into the mood and improve your performance.

INVEST IN A CORDLESS PHONE — A cordless phone gives you freedom to romp around from room to room — or when you ask your partner to perform "it" on the bathtub or in the shower while you can really be sexy.

BE INVENTIVE — Use your imagination to create a fantasy your partner simply can't resist. "Ask about your partner's fantasies and feed into them," advised Dr. Kerky. "Take your time to paint the scene in every detail. And be sure to listen to your partner and reciprocate their desires."

TRY USING NON-VERBAL SOUNDS — Describe a romantic encounter you and your partner had and between, but you don't have to describe the words aloud. Spice it [illegible] panting and groaning can help the conversation [illegible] your mating calls to [illegible] echoing the ardent whispers. "This can give your male the [illegible] being with an exciting new partner every night," said Dr. Kerky. "It doesn't have to be dark inside — if you have to do it with your head under the covers, you can [illegible] pretend you're [illegible] the next she can be [illegible] on the toilet bowl trying."

EXPERIMENT FREELY — Let's face it, there are probably a few love acts you feel [illegible] to try. But your partner may have been begging you to experiment with him/her. Use your imagination and [illegible] your partner [illegible] your hair.

BREAST CANCER

Facts that could save your life!

Each year 182,000 women find out they have breast cancer — and 44,000 die from the disease. But surprisingly, breast cancer is still widely misunderstood.

Here are the most common myths about this deadly disease, along with the facts from the American Cancer Society.

MYTH: A mammogram is the only way to detect breast cancer.

FACT: About 20 to 30 percent of cancers do not show up on a mammogram but can be felt. This is why examination by a health care professional and breast self-examinations are important parts of detection.

MYTH: A breast lump must hurt for it to be cancerous.

FACT: Generally, a cancerous breast lump doesn't hurt.

MYTH: A lump is the breast requires immediate surgery.

FACT: Every lump needs to be tested but doctors now have the fast, painless procedure to test some lumps for cancer. They use a fine needle to get fluid or tissue from the lump and the results are more than 90 percent accurate.

MYTH: Breast implants increase the risk of breast cancer.

FACT: There is no evidence that they do. However, implants can make it harder for a mammogram to detect tumors.

MYTH: After menopause, the risk of getting breast cancer decreases.

FACT: The older you are the more likely you are to get it.

MYTH: Nothing you can eat will help you avoid breast cancer.

FACT: Several kinds of food may offer some protection from the disease. These include cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts, soybeans, tofu, soy flour and soy milk. You may also lower your odds of getting breast cancer by reducing the amount of fat, meat and alcohol in your diet and eating lots of fruits and vegetables.

MYTH: Polychlorinated biphenyls cause cancer.

FACT: There is no evidence that these oils cause cancer, but studies show that a switch to mineral oil, but such as olive [illegible]

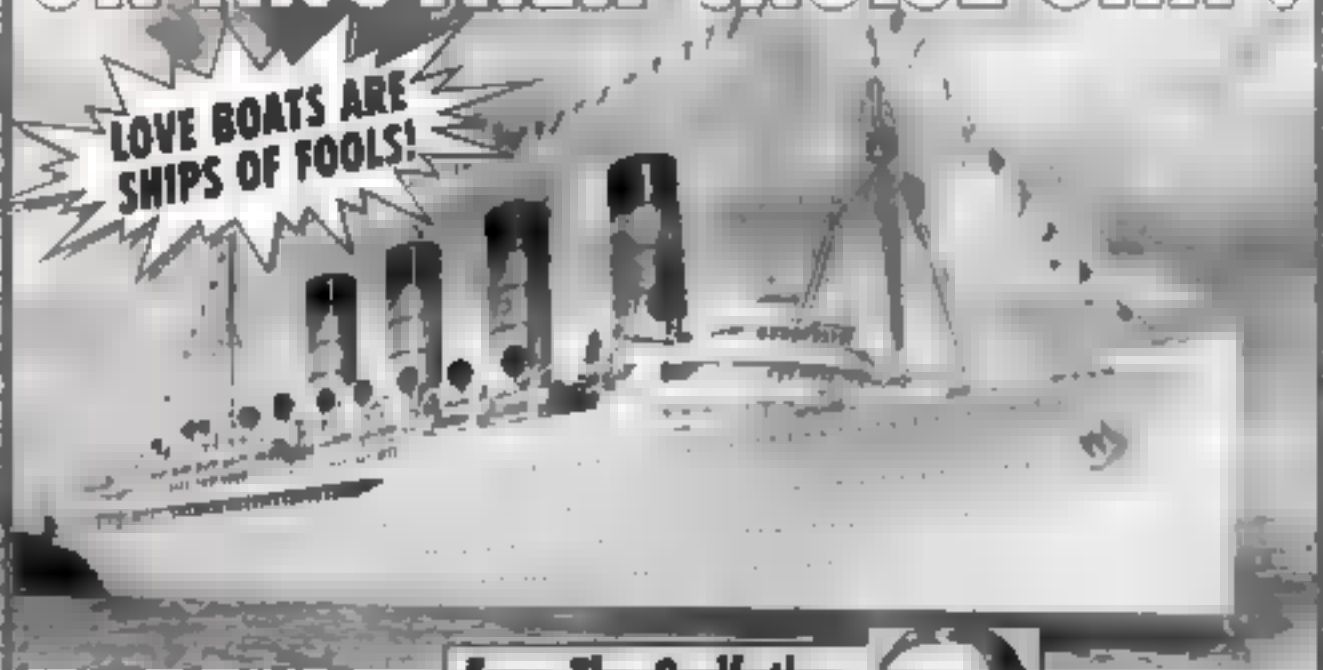
MY AMERICA By ED ANGER

I'D RATHER DIE THAN GET ON ANOTHER CRUISE SHIP!



I'm madder than Moby Dick with Captain Ahab on his tail after spending a weekend on one of those fancy Florida cruise ships.

Even The Godfather couldn't win in these crooked ship casinos!

My wife said she'd go on a hunger strike or cry her eyes out if I didn't take her on a cruise to the Bahamas for our wedding anniversary, so I decided to take her just to keep peace in the family. BIG mistake, folks.

I spent a little over four months in a North Korean prisoner of war camp and that was heaven compared to the nine days on these ships.

The daily schedule is pretty much the same. It begins with some 230 lb. former Swedish opera singer screaming over the intercom at 7 a.m. in the morning.

Will those passengers in white [illegible] chairs on deck ever [illegible] shuffleboard, terrified [illegible] along a big plastic rope to check [illegible] Bingo jackpot get?

Ever wonder what one of those [illegible] cruise ship cabins are like? Try using a coin-operated [illegible] for 10 hours and you'll get a pretty good idea. Even more [illegible] the same for. There are definitely [illegible] Monday load of potatoes.

And in any of your finest cruise ships' casinos, the only thing you're sure to win is a heart attack. They're all rigged. Even the Godfather couldn't win in these crooked ship casinos! Only the casino owners do. They get killed after standing on the [illegible] for seven hours.

The Bahamas are great for the single reason you can drink a couple of gallons of rum before you have to get back aboard ship.

Now I know why the Wright Brothers invented the airplane. They took a weekend cruise in Florida and decided there must be a better way to go.

But if you want to be trapped like a bug in a Howard Johnson's, fatty deep-fried potatoes and lousy carnival pork chops and shoot up every 10 minutes from 10 p.m. until 7 a.m. take a cruise. You'll love it.

WARNING: Reading sex manuals can WRECK your marriage!

By JOHNATHON STUART Weekly World News

Reading sex manuals can ruin your marriage!

"Many of my patients have told me of problems — even the breakup — in their relationships after reading some of these books," says Dr. Jack Leedy, a psychiatrist and author of seven books.

"Newlyweds I recently counseled received one as a wedding gift, and it almost caused a divorce. It took the joy of spontaneity and discovery out of their love life.

"Another couple who had been married for many years thought that a sex manual would save their marriage. But it made the marriage worse. It put them under such 'performance stress' that their sex life virtually disappeared."

Couples often get into trouble after reading sex manuals because the books present an unrealistic view of what to expect from sex, explained Dr. Leedy.

Many manuals don't account for the fact that each person performs differently. Each one is unique — and has good and bad days.

"It's like bowling," said Dr. Leedy. "Some days you play brilliantly and other times you're not so hot."

But sex manuals can be used constructively if you follow these tips from the psychiatrist:

- Discuss what you've read with each other before making love.
- Make sure you're completely relaxed before trying a new technique.
- Don't be afraid to say you don't like something — even if the book says you should like it.
- Don't assume that there's something wrong with you just because you don't respond to certain techniques described in a manual.

"Sex living is not more than what sex organs," said Dr. Leedy. "You don't have sex as organs on the manuals.

"It's as rich as your natural feelings for each other. Sensitivity and closeness in private are what [illegible]."

Dogs are HAPPY staying home alone!

Don't worry about leaving your dog alone when you go off to work, an expert says — because he gets along just fine when you're not at home.

"People think dogs need to run around with other dogs. Something that's much, much more than being under a desk — and that's a lot of nobody," says animal-behaviorist specialist Stephanie Hughes.

"Sure, they're social animals and they shouldn't be isolated for long periods of time, but don't worry about leaving them when you go off to work."

Hughes says that if your pooch isn't chewing on the furniture or crapping other members, he isn't bored while he's home alone.

IS YOUR CHILD A FUTURE SERIAL KILLER?

By ALEX MORGAN

Crime expert reveals four telltale signs your kid could turn into a monster!

CRIME EXPERT Ashton Burke

It's every parent's worst nightmare — your child has become a serial killer!

Imagine the heartache of seeing your child commit helpless crimes, get captured by cops, become one of the most hated people in America and perhaps even face the death penalty.

But now you can learn to recognize the petty warning signs that tell you whether your kid is likely to become a serial killer.

"Like so many problems, early detection is the key to prevention," said crime analyst Ashton Burke of Carbyleville, Va. "It may be difficult for a parent to face the fact that a child has these tendencies — but facing the truth early gives you a chance to turn the youngster around."

Burke offered these telltale signs:

1 Your child is mean to animals.

"This is the classic sign," Burke said. "If you have a child who seems to enjoy torturing a small pet, such as a cat or dog, it shows he has an evil streak that needs your attention. This is one of the most obvious and most reliable signs."

2 Your child takes an unusually great interest in television news shows, especially when the subject is murder or other heinous crimes.

"The child may well be making role models of the murderers," Burke said. "Parents need to keep a close eye on their children's interests."

3 Your child rarely laughs and seems uncomfortable when

Burke pointed out that a child's arrest is certainly not a "signpost" or hard and fast proof of a future as a criminal or serial killer.

"Many criminals do different people for different reasons, so you can't [illegible] because they do it like the latest serial killer is doing," Burke said. "But keeping the traits in mind can help prevent such a shocking tragedy when they're so many other more reliable clues here."

4 Your child takes an unhealthy interest in weapons, such as guns and knives.

"Many children like to play cops and [illegible] that's not a problem," said the expert.

"But if the child has a strong interest in real guns, then you should

Strict parents raise better kids!

Children raised by permissive parents are more likely to go bad or exhibit those children raised by parents who are too strict, a long-term study shows.

"Now we have research evidence nailing down that it's the 'too lenient' parents who do their kids and society the most harm, with the most serious long-term effects," said psychiatrist Dr. Paul Wood.

Dr. Wood, who specializes in child psychiatry, pointed to a study conducted by Royal [illegible] having children from the time they were referred to a child-guidance clinic in St. Louis, Mo., until they were in their 40s, and he found that one-fourth became antisocial adults." Dr. Wood said.

And he emphasized: "It was found that while just 8 percent of those who had 'too strict' parents eventually turned into antisocial adults, 36 percent of those who had 'too lenient' parents turned into antisocial adults."

I threw up on a salad bar — and didn't tell a soul!

MAY in Durham

Dear Dotti. My husband and I went out to eat the other night and things went downhill fast. We paid for the all-you-can-eat salad bar. And on my second trip, something hit me wrong — and I hurled in the lettuce bin.

In a panic, I stirred the whole mess up with salad tongs and hightailed it back to my seat. The restaurant wasn't too busy at the time so nobody saw me do it. But as my husband and I got ready to leave, I saw a family come in and head straight for the salad. I felt awful, Dotti, but I was afraid to say anything. Did I do the right thing? — May in Durham

Dear May: Since you live in North Carolina and I live in Los Angeles, I have no problem with your little fast pass. Just let the blood of your poor victim be upon your own head! — Dotti

What I want is a pair of your panties to add to my extensive collection of celebrity undergarments. I'm willing to pay you $10,000. When can I have one of my agents pick them up? — Rich Boy in Lakeland

Dear Rich Boy: If you think I'm going to sell my panties to a creep like you, you're absolutely right. Send your agent any time. Just make sure he's got that $10,000 in CASH — I don't take checks!

Hubby's dirty magazines are full of naked MEN!

Dear Dotti: I'm 100 percent confused. While tidying up the attic I found a stack of dirty magazines my husband had hidden away. I wouldn't have thought all that much about them if they had been Playboys or something along those lines. But I'm talking about finding three hot, X-rated magazines that are filled with pictures of naked men! Why does he have magazines like this? Are they some kind of sick joke? — Carol in Lovin

Dear Carol: Do the words "short homosexual" mean anything to you? If not, they should!

Daddy's a plumber, but he plays 'doctor' with my aunt

Dear Dotti: I don't understand my daddy at all. During the week, he is a plumber and works real hard every day. But on the weekends when my mother goes to work at a department store, Mommy's sister comes to the house and Daddy dresses up like a doctor. Then they go into Daddy's bedroom and lock the door. When I ask him what they're doing in there, he won't talk about it. Why does he play around like this, Dotti? I'm 14 and I just don't get it. — Confused in Kingston

People won't get near me since I had my colostomy!

CURTIS in Morgan

Dear Dotti: Ever since I had an operation on my bowels and had to start wearing a colostomy bag to collect my waste everybody has been treating me like I've got the plague. They try to act like everything is normal, but they keep their distance and make it clear that they don't want anything to do with me. How can I get them to overcome their squeamishness? — Curtis in Morgan

Dear Curtis: Colostomy bags are enormously sensible and most people know this. The bottom line: Put yourself in their shoes — and try to understand how THEY feel!

FRENCH WANT TO BAN THE PHRASE 'GAY PAREE'

[redacted] · Weekly World News

[redacted]IS, France — Ticked-off French officials want to banish the phrase "Gay Paree" from books, magazines and newspapers the world over — for fear foreigners will think Paris is a city of sissies!

"Paris is not the San Francisco of Europe — and damn it, we don't want people believing it is," fumed straitlaced City Commissioner Claude Glasser.

"But every time some artist gathers an atmosphere of Gay Paree, readers picture a city full of homosexuals seashaying up and down the streets, kissing and running gay mashing hands. It's gotten so bad, even the homosexuals themselves think this is some kind of gay heaven and they're starting to swarm here from the four corners of the Earth. We've discovered it and the whole city council feels it's time to put a stop to this mess — and put a stop to it right now."

The indignant commissioner and his cronies admit that foreigners have fondly referred to Paris as "Gay Paree" for years by a mistake — but they say the term has taken on a sleazy new meaning in recent years.

"Back in the heyday of the Folies Bergere, writers around the world began calling this beautiful city 'Gay Paree' in recognition of our fabulous nightlife and the lighthearted air of our people," said outfitted mayor's assistant Andre Vidoin. "And for many years we felt the term conveyed the true spirit of Paris to potential tourists around the world. But now, Paree no longer wants to be thought of as quite so gay, if you know what I mean."

Skittish city officials are launching a high-powered public relations campaign aimed at persuading writers, editors and publishers to avoid the hateful phrase. And Commissioner Glasser says he'll ask the French government to crack the whip against any swishy writers who refuse to play along.

"Frenchmen are the greatest lovers on Earth, and no red-blooded Parisian wants to hear his favorite city called 'Gay Paree,'" fumed the exasperated official. "From now on, anybody who wants to talk about 'Gay Paree' had better watch his step — because to every patriotic Frenchman, those are fighting words, my friend."

EIFFEL TOWER draws millions of visitors to Paris every year. Officials are fighting to keep the image of the city from going down the tubes.

Nickname makes Paris sound like it's a city of sissies, say French bigwigs

Ants eat entire town!

CHITRA, Brazil — An entire town of 4,000 people is being eaten alive — by a stinging army of tree fire ants.

The deadly swarm has killed animals and dozens of children in the hospital and hundreds evacuated in this town on the banks of an Amazon River tributary.

Desperate townsfolk have tried to kill the attacking ants with boiling water, gasoline, fire and pesticides but nothing stops them. Meanwhile, the surrounding ants — who attack vegetables, and

Why do UFOs fly over my house every night?

Dear Serena: You might not believe this, but UFOs fly over my house every night. I'm not talking about little blinking lights in the sky.

WILL in Deerfield.

I'm talking about saucer-shaped starships that are 50 to 75 feet in diameter and fly at treetop level. Please tell me what's going on, Serena. And please let me know if I'm in danger. — Will in Deerfield.

Dear Will: Space aliens have set up a temporary base camp about a mile from your home. They plan to leave next month. Meanwhile, you're not in danger. These gentle beings are incapable of causing humans harm. They're just curious.

Dear Serena: Every night I dream that my husband dies. After his funeral, I move back home with my parents and fall in love with a childhood friend. I love my husband dearly, and this dream is making me lose my mind. What does it mean? I feel so guilty when I wake up in the morning that I think I'm going to go insane. — Teresa in Boston

Dear Teresa: The meaning of your dreams is really quite simple. You're longing for the past. In other words, you're grieving over your husband's untimely death. Your dreams are your mind's way of telling you that you must get on with your life. Stop dwelling on the past. Start living in the present. Only then will you truly experience happiness. — Serena.

Dear Concerned: A woman near your house knocks on your door and tells you she's been taking very good care of your daughter but she's going to have to keep her there. Expect to find your daughter on your doorstep before the end of the week. — Serena.

Dear Serena: I think you're the greatest psychic ever. The thing is, I've written to you five times and have never gotten an answer. My problem: money trouble. You gave me a $25,000 lottery jackpot using the lucky numbers on your horoscope page. My question: Am I a victim of bad luck or did you answered my letters? — Sally in Miami.

Sally in Miami

Dear Sally: Each week I receive 9,000 to 10,000 letters and I simply cannot answer them all. I do pray and meditate over ALL the letters I get and try my best to bring luck and good fortune to everyone.

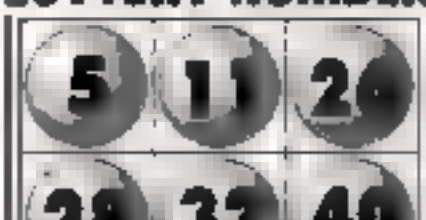
THIS WEEK'S SIX LUCKIEST LOTTERY NUMBERS:

CLIP & SAVE IN YOUR WALLET



Weekly World News has purchased exclusive rights to the world's most powerful computer — and we use it to pick the six luckiest lottery numbers every week!

The Seven-bank computer called Bright Green has the ability to calculate which lottery numbers are most likely to come up each week, based on previous performance and established numbers. The numbers are good for the week the NEWS is on the newsstand.

The computer scans all numbers selected or lotteries across America over the past year to provide a statistical base for producing future results. Every value is given to the most recently selected numbers.

Using all available data, the computer picks the Weekly World News exclusive: The WORLD'S BIGGEST CROSSWORD!

Put your hand on my "Hand of Power" and make a wish! I will bless you right now!

Let me send you a personal letter of guidance and a very special beautiful gift.

DON'T BE SCARED!

I want to send help TO YOU immediately. I know about the hard times you are having right now. I can understand that you have problems that just don't seem to "work themselves out".

My name is Irene Hughes. I have helped thousands and thousands of people. I am one of the most famous psychics in the World. Last year, more than two hundred thousand people communicated with me and received my personal instructions and guidance designed to make their life better. I have written books, appeared on national TV shows, appeared in hundreds of newspaper articles, and more. Even though I charge a great deal of money for my private consultations, I want to prove to you that I can help make wonderful changes in your daily life.

PLEASE, TAKE MY HAND and help me to make good things possible for you NOW!

Do you see my hand to the left? I need you to put YOUR HAND onto mine, and leave it there for at least one full minute. Make a wish while your hand is on mine. Clear your thoughts of everything but your needs, and think about all the good things that you wish for in life.

Check off what you need now:

Yes, Irene, Help Me! We have held hands together!

Please help me to get the following right away:

- ☐ Big Money for me and my loved ones.
- ☐ Special numbers to help me win big at lotteries, bingo, or games.
- ☐ Someone to love me. _____
  (write the name of the person here, if you know it)
- ☐ A secret wish that I want to keep private between me and you
- ☐ A special need: _____
  (write in here)
- ☐ A large, comfortable and beautifully furnished new house.
- ☐ A new luxurious car.
- ☐ I want to be loved by others.
- ☐ I want to help someone in my family to succeed or get out of trouble.
  (write in name of person here)

Send To: Irene Hughes Personal Help Center
Box 98666
Las Vegas, NV 89193-8666

Yes, Irene, I want you to help me. I have checked off what I need most, or I have written you a separate letter. I have put my hand on yours for at least one minute, and I have wished with all my heart that you will help me. Please rush me my letter of guidance based on our personal consultation. I know you will help me right away with a real, positive spiritual force.

- ☐ I have enclosed $4.00 in U.S. currency or check to help you with the first class postage and your costs, and I will await your gift along with my letter. I certify I am over the age of 18.
- ☐ I have enclosed an additional $1 for RUSH processing.

COUPLE'S WILD SEX TEARS THE HOUSE DOWN

'The earth didn't move . . . it exploded!' says red-faced bride

By JOE BERGER
Weekly World News

HOUSTON — Hot-blooded hubby Patrick Allernathy and his excited bride Sharie made whoopee with such wild abandon on their wedding night that their bed banged a wall and ruptured a gas line — blasting their whole house to smithereens!

The loving couple miraculously survived the blast. But their $47,000 dream was a total loss.

"Then I guess we got a little too carried away," gasped shell-shocked Sharie, 23, as she examined the shambles that moments ago had been the once-tidy house.

"We'd just gotten married, you know, and we were in the bedroom celebrating the occasion for all it was worth," the shaken lady recalled.

"And we must have been really rockin' and rollin' because out of a sudden there was this gigantic bang.

"Then the next thing we knew, the whole house fell down on top of us. We were lying there all bruised and all up, not knowing whether to laugh or cry. Finally Pat said, 'Did the earth move for you, too?' and then we both just broke out laughing."

'Their bed banged the wall so hard it ruptured a gas line,' say firemen

YOUR STAR SIGN WHAT KIND OF YOU

Your star sign reveals what kind of parent you are — and can even help you figure out why your own parents raised you like they did!

That's the word from top astrologer Michael Lutin, who says your horoscope is packed with parenting clues that can help you understand your mom and dad and do right by your kids.

By SUSAN JAMISON

"Knowing the astrological forces working on parents can give you a surprisingly new perspective," says Lutin, author of a best-selling new book on the subject, called Children and Their Stars (Bell Tower, $12.95).

Parents and their relationship to one another can influence their children's personalities, he says. If we call upon astrological principles, these forces can give tremendous insight into our past, present and future.

Check out the astrological signs below to learn how stars affect you and your parents.

FATHERS

ARIES (March 21-April 20): You're a take-charge kind of guy, but because you're ready to step in and help, you're also willing to step back when the time is right.

BRUSSELS, Belgium — A handwriting expert claims that Anne Frank's famous diary was not written by Anne at all — but by a middle-aged woman named Katrine Weissberg.

Dr. Artur Aronson says he carefully analyzed the touching handwritten journal, which detailed Anne's thoughts and experiences as she and her Jewish family hid from the Nazis during World War II, in the attic of an Amsterdam family [illegible]

LOCH NESS MONSTER'S FOOTPRINTS!

[illegible] creature exists and can walk on land!

the famed monster and to inhabit the murky lake can walk on land!

"This remarkable find puts everything we've thought to be known about the Loch Ness Monster upside down," explained the famous naturalist Sir Jeremy Hayseth, a world-renowned paleontologist who has spent years studying dinosaurs and other gigantic creatures. Until this week, scientists believed that the largest animal ever to walk on land was a [illegible]

[illegible] footprints was a massive comb measuring eight inches long that showed signs of severe decay. It is believed to have fallen out as the mysterious animal trudged along.

The tracks were discovered by a tourist from Helsinki, who photographed them and reported the find to police. Officials referred the matter to Sir Jeremy, who heads the prestigious Royal Society of Marine Cryptozoology.

"We made a cast of one of the prints," said Sir Jeremy. "It was slightly more than 18 inches long. And given the depth of the impression, we estimate that it was made by an animal weighing approximately 50 tons — heavier than a full-grown African elephant."

The fact that the well-behaved [illegible] prints was undisturbed is significant, noted the expert.

"This shows that Nessie was not dragging herself along like a seal. She has a fully developed leg structure. Her feet, while somewhat flipper-shaped, even show signs of having vestigial toes."

The discovery of the sharp tooth also tells scientists a lot. "This confirms that Nessie is a carnivore," said Sir Jeremy.

"Vegetation in the loch is too sparse to support a herbivore. Nessie must feed principally on fish — and it now seems quite likely that she also goes ashore from time to time to hunt for small animal prey, such as rabbits, foxes and perhaps even small dogs."

PARENTING LESSONS FROM APES!

By KEVIN CREED · Weekly World News

RICHMOND, Va. — A biologist who specializes in primates is asking the state to pay for a controversial child-rearing education program. He wants to teach pregnant women how to be mothers — by letting them watch female chimpanzees and gorillas care for their young!

Dr. Frank Andelor, who has written 11 highly acclaimed books on primate behavior, says first time mothers often know little or nothing about raising children. And women, most books on parenting are so full of nonsense they're virtually worthless.

"Human mothers can learn volumes from watching the parenting techniques that come perfectly naturally to the chimp and lowland gorilla," said Dr. Andelor. "Most women, perhaps [redacted] terrified to discipline, fearing that the child won't like them or else they don't get that [redacted] and punish the child for [redacted] harshly — and hold a grudge for weeks.

"Compare those human [redacted] with that of a female chimp [redacted] attack and abuse. So [redacted] mean what hard enough to stop [redacted] get her point — that discipline should [redacted] immediate and appropriate [redacted] and then the offense should be [redacted]

But just in case anyone thinks that punishment is the only thing to be learned from mother apes, the experts point out that the primates rarely [redacted] young with their early [redacted] which they perfect to a [redacted] and even after the babies reach the age of 3, they remain close to their mothers.

"There are no daycares [redacted] Dr. Andelor. "Chimp moms are in the [redacted] need my advice about raising the [redacted] and gentler' attitude toward their young is very firm, but [redacted] nurturing.

"Human females need to recognize that mothering is a full-time job and treat it [redacted] that way."

Dr. Andelor wants the state of Virginia to subsidize his program in which first-time mothers-to-be will be required to spend a week at his primate center, watching chimp and gorilla mothers. But so far the proposal has [redacted]

MOTHERLY LOVE. Female chimpanzees are tender and caring parents — and they could teach humans a thing or two about the difficult job.

WHAT DO YOU THINK?

Some people feel hunter-returns-to-be could learn a lot about mothering by studying the simple down-to-earth methods female gorillas use in interacting with their young.

Others believe that attending Dr. Frank Andelor's "gorilla parenting" classes will only confuse future mothers and make them disregard the complexities of being a mom in these sophisticated times.

PORKER'S REVENGE!

By JOE BERGER, Weekly World News

TOKYO, Japan — Meaty society matron Michiko Hagiwara has won a whopping $2,900 in damages — because her new dresses fit too tight across her blubbery bottom!

Wide-bodied woman wins $2,900 in tight-dress lawsuit!

A judge ordered boutique bosses to pay miffed Michiko the money after she testified the dresses they sold her were so snug they made her butt look like a bushel bag of potatoes.

"The dresses were so tight they ripped my whole wardrobe, Your Honor," the wide-bodied belle told Judge Tetsu Nakajima.

"I couldn't open the opera because I couldn't even sit down without being absolutely miserable.

"And every time I walked down the street I could feel people staring at me and laughing at my behind. It was the most embarrassing time of my life."

The overstuffed socialite's tale of woe began when she waddled into a Ginza boutique in the ritzy Ginza district.

There she picked out three dresses to wear on an upcoming trip to Austria.

"My husband and I were going to Europe to celebrate our anniversary and I wanted to look absolutely fabulous," gushed Michiko told reporters.

"So I bought the most beautiful expensive dresses in the store and the manager promised they would be snug fit for me perfectly by the time we left on vacation the next week. When you weigh 315 pounds it's important to get a good fit and they promised me.

"But when I went back to pick up my beautiful new gowns, the work wasn't done and our plane was ready to leave. There was nothing I could do but take the dresses and run."

So the rich tart lady spent 10 days huddling around Austria in dresses that were two sizes too small. And when she returned to Tokyo, she modestly filed suit — charging those tight dresses caused her both physical and emotional suffering.

Michiko hoped "it just cost right."

And after viewing a videotape of the glutton's wide in her flesh-hugging gowns, Judge Nakajima agreed.

"Even heavy people have a right to wear beautiful clothes," he declared.

MICHIKO'S NIGHTMARE! The tubby socialite said she was a laughing-stock everywhere she went in her flesh-hugging gowns. Below, the pudgy lady's plight has made headlines around the world.

Boozed-up brewery worker drowns in huge tub of beer!

MUNICH, Germany — Roly-poly Peter Golz got drunk as a skunk on his 30th birthday, dived naked into a gigantic vat of beer — and drowned!

Friends found the blurto bachelor floating facedown in the suds at a brewery where he worked as a watchman.

"He always wanted to go swimming in the vats and he finally did it," said vat expert Aaron Killer.

"Trouble is he didn't know how to swim. That's one little fact he forgot to mention."

Pals had Pete sink for the night as they threw him a six-foot barrel birthday bash at a tavern near the brewery.

IS IRAQ POISONING

YES! says Pentagon source — & thousands of Americans have already died!

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In the worst act of terrorism in American history, Iraqis have poisoned an estimated 27 percent of our drinking water with biological contaminants, killing 1,793 people.

And millions more are expected to die in the coming months!

That's the claim of a high ranking Pentagon official who has leaked a detailed 37 page official document to the press. The file reveals that, since 1991, a team of 232 Iraqi extremists smuggled approximately 120 tons of a highly contaminated biological agent through U.S. Customs and poured it into hot bodies of water in America.

The contaminant, known as Bacillus X-14, is a highly refined solution derived from the dreaded black plague. It slowly destroys the body's internal organs. And its molecules are too small to be filtered out by most water filtration systems in use in the United States, the document reveals.

Approximately half a million people have been treated for the initial symptoms, flulike aches, fever, sore throats and coughs — all of which can be misdiagnosed as the flu.

victims die by the gulp, until the patient finally dies — often written off as a flu victim.

Thirty-one terrorists have been apprehended and are being held at an undisclosed Washington location. All have confessed but will not reveal the names of their compatriots. Nor will the 31 captives reveal where their fellow terrorists plan to strike next.

But they do say that the water supplies in parts of all but six states have been poisoned. And they've even told federal agents some of the states that have been affected. These states include New York, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Florida, Illinois, Arkansas, Texas, Nebraska, Idaho and California.

"This is a deadly serious crisis," said the undercover Pentagon source, a biological warfare expert. "It's ramifications already dwarf the damage done in February of 1993 when Muslim fundamentalists bombed the World Trade Center.

"In that tragedy there were less than 1,000 people killed or injured. But this massive, systematic death plot will destroy millions of lives from U.S. to New York, ... since the past seven years since the Gulf War, Saddam Hussein's terrorists have infiltrated 44 of our 50 states."

The source, who has been employed at the Pentagon for more than five years, said the government is working overtime to find a solution. Meanwhile, people are still showing up at doctors' offices with flulike symptoms — and dying days later.

"Wishing to avoid nationwide panic, the government is trying to keep a lid on this," he said. "But it's important that the public knows."

Nevertheless, simply knowing about the poisoning might not help. Even water bottled in waters that might be tainted with the virus. "There's simply no way to avoid it," he said.

More than one-quarter of the U.S. water supply has been contaminated, sources say!

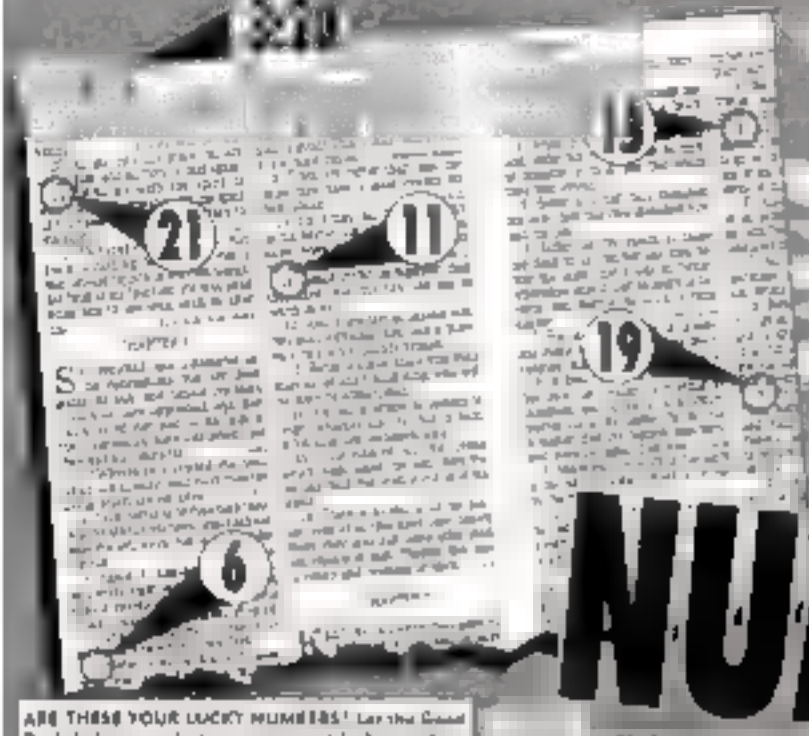
LUCKY BIBLE NUMBERS!



ARE THESE YOUR LUCKY NUMBERS? Let the Good Book help you select your personal lucky numbers by following the five simple instructions below

You can change your fortune and turn your life around — with lucky numbers from the Holy Bible!

By BEATRICE DEXTER

Those numbers can help you win the lottery, choose dates for special occasions like weddings or trips, or even select a lucky address, according to Bible expert Zenos Welles. Using his special technique you can expect some miraculous good luck overnight!

"These numbers are based on your own actions and fortunes and are especially selected for you," says Welles, a Mobile, Ala., author whose book, "Using the Bible to Get Your Life Where It Ought to Be," is published by Prentice-Hall. "You select them using the Bible and they have the special blessing associated with the Holy Word."

We think you'll find your lucky numbers will bring you incredible good fortune if you trust in them and use them properly.

"Since I devised this technique in 1961, thousands of people have used it — and all of them have experienced some kind of turnaround in their lives," Welles says.

1. Note the chapter and verse numbers at the tops of the pages. These numbers will give you a total of the day's lucky numbers. For example, Exodus 3:17 indicates the numbers 3 and 17 will be lucky for you.

2. Isolate the numbers of your birthdate. Suppose you were born on Feb. 12 1960. Your basic numbers are 2 and 12. Ignore zeros in your birthdate and use only the digits — in this case 2, 12, 1, 9, 6, 0.

3. Add the numbers of your birthdate to the chapter and verse numbers. Suppose you're looking at Exodus 3:17. Add 3 and 17 to your birthdate numbers and you get 5, 29, 13, 26, 20, 3. Each verse is numbered — and for you the number is lucky. The best number is your birthdate is 3 indicates that the number of the 3rd verse on the page is lucky for you. Continue on number by number through your birthdate and the lucky digits and the various lucky numbers of complete verses on the two open pages. If there are 40 verses, your lucky number is 40. This is your final lucky number for the day.

4. Use any combination or order of your lucky numbers wherever possible.

If your Bible doesn't give you enough numbers to use on any given day, this may be a problem for you. You may want to delay decisions until the next day.

REAL-LIFE ICEMAN NEVER FEELS THE COLD!

By KELLY TURNER and PATRICIA GEORGE (World Wide News)

Hell will freeze over before Harold Deal feels cold!

A lightning bolt zapped him in the head 29 years ago — and he's been a walking heat wave ever since.

"I haven't felt so much as a chill since 1960 and, believe me, I've tried," said the 61-year-old retired electrician.

"I've been outside when it's 14 degrees below zero, wearing nothing but shorts and thongs.

"Soaking in a tub of ice water gives me nothing more than a relaxed, pleasant feeling."

And spending hours in a car with the air-conditioning running full blast is like a walk on a tropical beach for Deal.

When the lightning struck, it sent 300,000 volts of electricity shooting through his body. The bolt fused his pocket change into a molten mass of metal and sent him flying 30 feet through the air.

"It knocked me right out of my boots," he recalled. "My head flew back and all the fillings fell out of my mouth. My whole body tingled for three days."

The electrifying experience changed him forever. "When it was cold out, I put on a jacket," said Deal. "But while other people were freezing, I'd be stripping my jacket and rolling up the sleeves because I felt warm all over.

"Soon I realized I'd never be cold again."

While Deal's condition is rare, it's not unheard of, said Dr. Hoosiwug Hoohmand, a neurologist who specializes in treating lightning victims.

Two patients in 500 develop chill resistance — but the physician has never seen anyone as severely affected as Deal. The electricity from the lightning damaged part of his brain, explained Dr. Hoohmand.

"Just like in a house, our brains have a section that controls how hot or cold our body we feel. His nerves can no longer feel cold temperatures. Other than that, he is perfectly normal."

The human furnace says he's saved a small fortune in winter clothes and heating bills since his internal thermostat went haywire. "I don't own a coat or a long-sleeved shirt — and my wife lets me keep the house at around 60degrees," said Deal, whose license plate reads "No Coat."

His neighbors in Green wood, S.C., are no longer surprised to see him walking around town in shorts and a T-shirt in the middle of January.

He doesn't get sick from the cold.

"People used to think I was crazy," he admitted.

"But I feel like I've been blessed. Being struck by lightning made a new person out of me.

"Now I can help people understand what lightning victims go through."

PHILADELPHIA — The notion that gene defects are responsible for criminal activity, drug abuse and other antisocial behavior just doesn't hold water, a noted scientist says.

Dr. Garland E. Allen, speaking to the American Association for the Advancement of Science, said flawed studies linking behavior such as homosexuality, criminal activity and alcoholism with gene defects often receive a splash of media publicity when they are originally announced.

But when the studies are discredited, the retractions rarely get the same attention, he said.

FORGET ALL THAT SEXUAL HARASSMENT CRAP!

Forget all that hype about sexual harassment suits — you can win at office romance without getting into trouble just by following some commonsense tips found in a new book.

"Sex at work has become one of life's great inevitables," according to Judi James, author of Sex at Work — a Survival Guide. "It's often just a question of spending so much time in the office."

The British model-turned-writer spent a year quizzing white collar workers about their on-the-job romances and learned what led to victory in the bedroom and boardroom.

Here are some of her most important tips:

☞ RECOGNIZE ATTRACTION — Sexy body language at the water cooler or copier can give you clues that a co-worker you have a crush on is interested in you as well. A come-hither look is an obvious clue — but mere eye contact is not enough, notes the author. "This simple gesture has become devalued largely through the effects of customer service courses that insist the more eye contact you use, the more honest you will look."

☞ LOOK BEFORE YOU LEAP — Weigh the pros and cons of entering a relationship with this person. Ask yourself if you'll be accused of favoritism or if you mind being the subject of office gossip.

Also, ask yourself honestly if this person is genuinely attractive to you, or if you're simply bored. "Mind numbing boredom may lead you into fantasizing about people you would normally not consider giving privileged space to," says the expert.

You can have a hot office romance and NEVER GET CAUGHT

Best-selling author tells you how!

☞ GO FOR IT — Once you decide to make your move, be direct. Don't like the lines between business and pleasure by persuading the other person to work late and then suggesting a meal. Try a line such as, "Would you like to have dinner tomorrow night? Purely social."

☞ BE READY TO RETREAT — If the person turns you down, never push or demand an explanation. Instead plan a semi-joke one-liner to restore normal relations.

☞ DUMP GENTLY — When the relationship winds down, don't use any of those nasty tricks people sometimes use to dump a partner. You can't send the person up or "forget" to phone — because you'll see your ex-sweetheart at work the next day. Writing a "Dear John" note may seem a bit formal, but it's a great way to end things with finality.

Do you know the truth about booze and office parties?

For many workers, booze-soaked office parties offer a chance to throw inhibitions to the wind and engage in a romp with a colleague they've been lusting over. But such gatherings are fraught with career-killing danger. Here, Orlan writer Judi James, are four big office party myths:

MYTH 1: It doesn't matter what I do at the office party because everyone else will others remember everything in minute detail.

MYTH 2: If the boss behaves badly, so can I.

Wrong. Remember he can't see how outrageous he's being, but he can observe you.

MYTH 3: Catching the boss in the act will enhance my career because he'll be Wrong. If the company bigwigs are aware that you know things you shouldn't, they will want you out the door as soon as possible.

MYTH 4: If the firm is laying on free booze, I should guzzle as much as possible.

Wrong. Never get drunk at any work event. Apart from the embarrassment that can occur, it may also bring an lethal

. . . for the second time!

By KEVIN CROID Weekly World News

SANTA FE, N. M. — In an amazing case of history repeating itself, a little girl's life has been saved by her pet frog, Evel Knievel — for the second time!

Four years ago, when a fire swept through the home of 5-year-old Niki Greenstahl, the plucky amphibian woke the child up by jumping on her face. His quick thinking allowed the girl to smell the smoke, wake her family and escape — moments before the flames consumed the home.

GRATEFUL: Jane Greenstahl.

The entire family fled to safety, but a burning ember struck Evel, costing him his right eye.

And as if that act of heroism weren't enough, just last week, when Niki was attacked by a ferocious pit bull, Evel came to the rescue again. The courageous bulldog with the heart of a lion leaped into the beast's face and stuck his left forelegs into the dog's eye.

The startled canine was temporarily distracted. He released little Niki from his jaws to scramble into the house to safety.

Evel was able to hop away and crawl under the house.

"Evel is my best friend in the world," said Niki, now 9. "He showed me how much he loves me by risking his life for me — twice.

"I'll never forget what he did for me."

Niki's grateful mother Jane says she'll never seen anything like the incredible bond between Evel and her daughter.

"This last act of heroism is doubly touching because Evel was nearly killed in the fire saving Niki's life in 1994," she says.

"And yet he didn't hesitate to risk life and limb a second time to protect her from that awful dog.

"Words can't express the debt of gratitude I owe him."
